

*City of College Park
Celebrates May 7th - May 13th
As National Drinking Water Week*

- WHEREAS: For more than 40 years, the American Water Works Association and its members have used Drinking Water Week as a unique opportunity for both water professionals and the communities they serve to recognize the vital role water plays in our daily lives; and
- WHEREAS: So vital that tap water delivers public health and protection and is a source for fire protection, health, hydration, and hygiene, whereas water supports our economy and the quality of life we enjoy; and
- WHEREAS: We are all stewards of the water's infrastructure upon which current and future generations depend; and
- WHEREAS: We recognize the hard work performed by the City of College Park's Public Works, Water and Sewer division, who ensures the safety and quality of our drinking water in addition to maintaining and operating our water distribution system to transport high quality drinking water from its source to the consumers' homes; and
- WHEREAS: We call upon our neighbors of College Park to recognize the dedication of our water professionals to deliver clean drinking water and to protect our source waters from pollution and practice water conservation and to get involved.
